The DAILY GRAPHIC—NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—
The demand for the DAILY GRAPHIC has exceeded 50,000 copies daily. With 7-foot steam presses continually in operation the publishers have been wholly unable to supply the demand, owing to the newness of the machinery and inadequacy of the facilities at their command. In a few days the introduction of additional facilities will enable them to execute all orders with promptness. The demand for the Daily Graphic a steadily increasing, and the brilliant success of the enterprise is an established fact. The litustrations of the paper have steadily improved in tone and fluish, and as machinery and workmen come up to the mark they will be fully equal to the standard desired.

The Daily Graphic has the largest circulation of any first class evening newspaper in the United States. It is the only daily illustrated newspaper in the world, and the only cight page evening paper in New York.

Its great leature of regularly illustrating the leading events of the day gives it an advantage and influence that no other paper possesses. Its immense circulation, three editions daily, is steadily and rapidly increasing, it is the only evening newspaper which possesses more than a local interest, and it has a large circulation in every prominent city in the United States. Society is made up of two classes—those who read and reflect, and those who see and understand. The DALLY GRAPHIC is the only paper which reaches both classes. It is not thrown aside when once read, but is preserved for the attractiveness of its illustrations, which are a permanent and graphic record of our times and progress. Its high tone, the ability with which it is conducted, its strict independence of all parties, seets and cliques; its enterprise, and the variety and freshness of its contents, all combine to make it the grant newspaper of the age. It affords the best and cheapest advertising of all newspapers, and the variety and freshness of its contents,
